Who is responsible for data processing and who can you contact?

Why do we process the data, and on what legal basis?

The processing of data takes place for the purpose of concluding and performing the contract. The processing of your data is necessary pursuant to Article 6(1)(b) GDPR for the conclusion and performance of the contract with you. Furthermore, the processing of data is necessary pursuant to Article 6(1)(f) GDPR to safeguard our legitimate interests. Our legitimate interests relate to the fulfilment of the mutual obligations under the contract between you and us. If you have given your consent, data processing may also take place for advertising and marketing purposes. You may object to the use of your data for advertising and marketing purposes at any time.

What types of data do we process?

We process the following categories of data: master data (e.g., name, address, contact person), communication data (e.g., phone number, email address), contract data (e.g., contract start and end dates), receivables data, and, if applicable, payment information (e.g., bank details, outstanding receivables).

Who do we share your data with?

Within our company, only the departments that require the data to fulfil our obligations have access to it. To the extent necessary for the processing of the contract, we may transfer your data to credit reporting agencies, other service providers, tax advisors, lawyers, and, if applicable, courts, collection agencies, and bailiffs.

Is data transferred to a third country or to an international organisation?

The transfer of your data to a country outside the EU generally does not take place. If service providers in a third country are used within the scope of order processing, they are obliged to comply with the EU level of data protection.

How long do we store your data?

After the end of the respective contract between you and us, we review your data three years later to determine whether we still need it and whether any statutory retention obligations prevent its deletion.

Is there an obligation to provide data?

The processing of the collected data is necessary for the conclusion and performance of the contract between you and us. If we are not allowed to process the data, we cannot fulfil our contractual obligations to you. We would have to terminate the contract if you object to the processing of the data. This does not apply if you only object to the processing for advertising and marketing purposes.

What data protection rights do you have?

You have the following rights under Articles 15 to 22 GDPR, provided the legal requirements are met: the right to access, rectification, erasure, restriction of processing, and data portability. In addition, under Article 13(2)(b) in conjunction with Article 21 GDPR, you have the right to object to processing based on Article 6(1)(f) GDPR.

Furthermore, pursuant to Article 77 GDPR, you have the right to lodge a complaint with the supervisory authority if you believe that the processing of your personal data is unlawful.
